

COOKIES POLICY

“Cookies” are small software tags stored on your computer or smartphone through the browser, retaining only information related to your preferences, thus not including your personal data.

On our website, we use cookies that allow us to improve the performance and browsing experience of our Customers/Users, increasing, on the one hand, the speed and efficiency of response and, on the other hand, removing the need to repeatedly enter the same information.

Cookies can be:

- Essential, allowing you to browse the website and access the reserved area, allowing, through collection of anonymous information, to help improve the way the website works, and understand what interests our users. We use these cookies, in particular, to record visits for statistical treatment. Acceptance of these cookies is a condition for using our website;
- Functional, allowing remembering access data to the reserved area. You can, at any time, control whether or not these cookies are used, through the settings of your browser or application;
- Advertising, allowing for targeted advertising according to the interests of each user, to target advertising campaigns according to browsing habits, while allowing you to link to social networks, such as LinkedIn, Facebook, YouTube, Instagram, among others, to target advertising on these websites as well. We use these cookies, in particular, to inform you of new products or campaigns in force and share other relevant content.

You may, at any time, control whether or not these cookies are used, through the settings of your browser or application.

We reserve the right, at any time, to make changes or updates to this Privacy Policy, these changes being duly updated on this Platform.

If you need additional clarifications about this policy, the treatment of information and personal data that we collect about you, please email us at privacy@kinto-mobility.pt. We have appointed a Data Protection Officer, who can be emailed at epd@kinto-mobility.pt.